

SUPPLEMENT TO
THE CAMBRIDGE REVIEW
CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND
29 APRIL 1897
(page LVIII)

CHESS.

The Inter-University match was played at the rooms of the British Chess Club, Covent Garden, on April 2nd, at 2 p.m. Oxford won the toss and took Whites on the odd boards.

Cambridge.		Oxford.
* 1. E. A. Crowley, Trin.	0	* E. G. Spencer-Churchill
		Magdalen	1
* 2. W. V. Naisch, Emm.	0	* E. Lawton, Corpus	1
* 3. R. Battersby, St Cath.	$\frac{1}{2}$	* R. A. Jenkins, Brasenose	$\frac{1}{2}$
4. C. E. C. Tattersall, Trin.	1	* G. Fraser, Corpus	0
5. L. McLean, King's	1	—George	0
6. A. L. Stainer, St Cath.	0	H. G. Stoker, Corpus	1
7. A. Fotheringham, Emm.	$\frac{1}{2}$	R. Hancock	$\frac{1}{2}$
	<hr style="width: 50%; margin: 0 auto;"/> 3		<hr style="width: 50%; margin: 0 auto;"/> 4

* Signifies played in last year's match.

No. 1. Crowley v. Spencer-Churchill. Black adopted Petroff's defence and early on lost a pawn. Later on in the game White won another, and was soon able to convert the game into a victory.

No. 2. Naisch v. Lawton. Mr. Naisch had the move and played the Queen's Gambit which was declined by Black. White got the best of the opening and appeared to have won a game at one point. Soon afterwards he made an oversight, losing the exchange and ruining his position, and at one resigned.

No. 3. Battersby v. Jenkins. A Queen's Gambit . . .